Yesterday

Why do humans keep trying (and failing) at monogamy?

We've all been raised on a diet of Disney movies and love ballads that seem to promote genetic monogamy, not only as the norm, but as aspirational.

This might be true for a lucky few, but I think we all know that, as a species, humans are not strictly monogamous. Truth be told, we aren't even monogam-ish.

So why do we keep trying? Here's what science and history says

Leftists now very concerned about "the Rittenhouse precedent".

Oh, you mean the precedent of having the right to defend yourself when a mob of pedos and violent criminals try to lynch you in the street?

Why would anyone who isn't a ghoul be concerned about that?

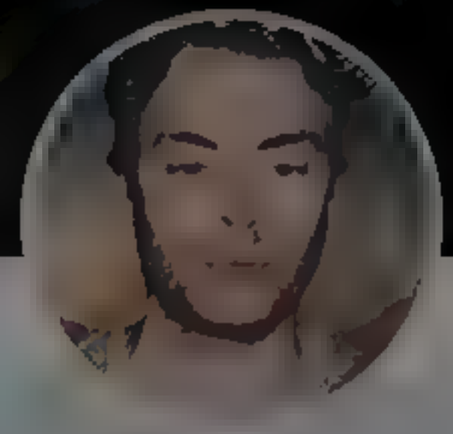
Virtually all of the European countries going back under lockdown have had mask mandates for the past year or more.

Shocked.



Almost like masks don't work?

Surely not?

Revealed: the towns at risk from far-right extremism

Mark Townsend Home Affairs Editor hour ago

It was conceived as an essay in civilisation but some have argued that Harlow has on occasion fallen short of this lofty ambition. Now a new analysis heralds fresh woe for the Essex new town designed in 194[illegible] by labelling it one of the places in England and Wales most "at risk" from the fallout of the pandemic, which could spill over into support for rightwing extremism.

Anyone who gets their news from CNN, MSNBC, NYT, or online digital media outlets believed this for most of the last 18 months

> Jonathan Keller @Guardantkeller
> Kyle Rittenhouse was an active shooter who killed unarmed black protesters after carrying an assault weapon over state lines. I'm amazed at how many people believe that statement is true

É verdade, como alguns afirmam, @jornaloglobo hoje cedo (como Folha e UOL na semana passada) disse falsamente que as pessoas que Kyle Rittenhouse atirou eram negras? Muitas pessoas estão compartilhando o "screen shot," mas eu não vi o tweet original ou uma retratação

Just confirmed that yet another major Brazilian news outlet, @jornaloglobo, announced in its headline today that the person Rittenhouse killed was a black man

What do you think explains that so many major media outlets around the world were deceived into believing this?

59 · 175 · 1.1K

Glenn Greenwald @ggreenwald · Nov 19
Eu realmente quero saber quantos brasileiros me chamando de fascista, racista e nazista por minha crença de que os promotores não conseguiram provar a culpa de Rittenhouse assistir a qualquer parte do julgamento, saber de qualquer coisa além do que a Globo contou e eles (via NYT)

81 · 70 · 789

Glenn Greenwald @ggreenwald · Nov 19
Se você está gritando que alguém merece ficar na prisão pelas próximas 4 décadas, mesmo que não tenha se preocupado em assistir ao julgamento, não sabe nada sobre ele e tenha todas as suas informações da CNN, então o autoritário é você. Não eu.

In addition to Brazil's 2 largest mainstream papers falsely stating this week that Rittenhouse killed 2 black men (followed by another large outlet), along with the UK's @Independent & a leading Dutch paper (see), Norway's 2nd biggest paper did, too

Why and how did so many major mainstream newspapers and media outlets around the world all falsely believe and publicly trumpet that Kyle Rittenhouse shot 3 black men? They didn't do this the day it happened but this week. Where do you think that false impression came from?

Other days it's the turn of some other floor to make up a tale, which the people on the 3rd floor turn around and believe

What they're doing is criticizing a 'legitimate' gov't. That's their demand. And that will happen in a day or two, probably on 9/11 (why not?) after Biden, because of his incompetence, bellies up and grants them statehood in order to release the 6 planes of hostages.

CNN published a front page op-ed in the aftermath of the Kyle Rittenhouse verdict titled, "There's Nothing More Frightening Today Than an Angry White Man."

The timing of the article is somewhat awkward given what just happened in Waukesha.

So its not about BLM?
But first, the black life of the suspect or somethinmg in his life mattered so much that there was a stabbing, and then his black life or freedom from jail mattered so much that the lives of many other people didn't matter
Is that it?

CNN's "Reliable Sources" newsletter spread the false claim that domestic terrorist Darrell E. Brooks Jr was fleeing a knife fight.
CNN wanted to make it seem like an accident.
The chief of police said this information was false.
Brooks has been charged with intentional murder.
"There is no evidence this is a terrorist incident"
Some in conservative media prematurely asserted on Monday that the tragedy in Waukesha was a terror attack, only for authorities to come out and publicly say there is no indication that it was. On "Fox & Friends," for instance, co-host Will Cain and Nigel Farage connected the deadly incident to terror attacks targeting Christians in Europe. And others on the right referred to the suspect as the "Christmas parade killer," with the implication that it was an intentional terror attack on Christians. While authorities said Monday that no

On November 21, 2021, a driver of a sport utility vehicle killed six people and injured 62 others when he hit and ran over participants and observers at a Christmas parade in Waukesha, Wisconsin, United States. The suspected driver of the vehicle, 39-year-old Darrell E. Brooks, was arrested and charged with five counts of first-degree intentional homicide.[2] Authorities have not established a motive for the attack.

I've always been pro-criminal justice reform, until the left perverted it.

- Violent crime should be prosecuted fully.

- Victimless crime shouldn't be prosecuted.

- Rehab for druggies, jail if they refuse.

CJR wasn't supposed to be, "Let criminals terrorize the public."

The claim that Joe Rogan -- a supporter of Bernie Sanders, an anti-imperialist, a crusader against factory farms, etc. -- is of the "far right" is the kind of stupidity in which liberals specialize: "let's try to expel the most influential media figure and insist he's our enemy."

> Anna Merlan ✓ @annamerlan
> Joe Rogan is solidifying his ties with the far right, while at the same time returning to be one of the most prominent faces of the UFC and a linchpin of Spotify's podcast network. And no one making money from any of this seems to mind a bit. vice.com/en/article/q...

Trump further diminished the U.S. in the eyes of the world by expanding his travel ban. This new "African Ban," is designed to make it harder for black and brown people to immigrate to the United States. It's a disgrace, and we cannot let him succeed.

The Tories are directly using many MSM journalists to increase the "scare factor", especially at the FT and Sun.

To quote Morrissey - "Stop reading the news because the news conspires to frighten you, to make you feel scared and alone, to make your life feel it isn't your own."

You still think face masks work? Really? Germany mandated medical-grade masks in January in most indoor public spaces. And they're currently seeing their biggest spike in cases.
So remind me again why you think flimsy cloth masks will make a difference?

No. This is baseless tyranny & I won't do it. We live in Britain. The govt has no right, outside of an emergency situation (& we are no longer in that) to tell us we must wear masks in shops. No-one should comply. It is tyranny.

This is not a law in Britain a law must pass a necessary threshold of natural justice & necessity. This does not pass that threshold. I do not recognize it as a legal requirement.

The huge infringements upon our liberties we endured during the coronav rus epidemic were justified because there was an existent al threat of explosive growth in cases lead ng to the swamping of the health service & mass death. Now the ep dem c s over & no such threat exists.

Every sodding question at this press conference is "why aren't you going further, bringing in more rules?"

Not a single journalist asks what evidence the PM has that measures like mask mandates will make any difference to the spread of the new Covid variant. Answer: he has none.

I'm agnostic on masks. Never been an anti-masker per se and happy to wear one if convinced that they work.

That you can be stopped entering McDonald's and pull a filthy cloth mask out of your pocket, hands all over it, put it on, and be admitted tells me this isn't about health.

What percentage of Covid transmission happens in shops? And what percentage of that will be prevented by making cloth facemasks mandatory? We're surely down to a fraction of 1 per cent at that point.

As a response to 2 UK cases of a new variant it seems utterly tokenistic.

There is not, as things stand, any more basis for justifying mandatory mask-wearing in shops now than there will be in any given week in any year ever hereafter. If we accept the legitimacy of mandating mask-wearing now we are accepting its legitimacy forever, from now on.

If, in a few weeks' time, robust evidence emerges that omicron escapes all vaccine protection & could induce a further wave of health system collapse & mass death, that would be the point at which to debate whether there should be new restrictions. Not now, "just in case"

Why do you say that? Pandemics require special measures. One person coughing or sneezing can infect a significant space. Catching the spray is the job of the mask.

Exemption cards
If you have an age, health or disability reason for not wearing a face covering you do not routinely need to show any written evidence of this you do not need show an exemption card
This means that you do not need to seek advice or request a letter from a medical professional about your reason for not wearing a face covering
However, some people may feel more comfortable showing something that says they do not have to wear a face covering This could be in the form of an exemption card, badge or even a home-made sign
Carrying an exemption card or badge is a personal choice and is not required by law

Many of the people tweeting #WearADamnMask are genuinely annoyed that Omicron isn't killing people. They'd also wear adult nappies if the government told them to.

Government extends mask mandate list to include takeaways.

So if you're at the restaurant to pick up a takeaway, you have to wear one.

But if you're in the restaurant for much longer for a sit down meal, you don't.

Makes total sense.

As many as 740,000 urgent cancer care referrals in the UK missed due to lockdown.

People who opposed lockdowns were blamed for exacerbating COVID deaths.

Will those who vehemently supported lockdowns take any responsibility for this?

Publicly shaming people for choosing not to take a medical procedure.

Hilarious.

Don't know what happened to Carr, he used to be one of the good guys.

In the midst of a spate of organised looting in California and beyond, the media and academia is telling people that they shouldn't be using the word 'looting' because it is associated with "people of colour".

People shouldn't get too excited about Jack Dorsey no longer being Twitter's CEO. The new CEO Parag Agrawal follows Dangerous Speech, a group funded by George Soros Open Society Foundation and after Trump's Twitter ban he liked tweets like this thread comparing the right to ISIS.

One person with undiagnosed cancer is extremely concerning. What about almost 50,000?

That's a football stadium full of people who have cancer but don't know it due to restrictions/the pandemic.

50,000 and we're not talking about it. Where is the outrage for them?

I don't know if a Byline Times journalist has an office to go - probably not - but I assume he wears a mask everywhere and has already cancelled his plans for Christmas. Ditto Peston, Rigby and every other lockdown loving hack, right?

Adam Bienkov
@AdamBienkov

"Let's not give this virus a second chance," says Boris Johnson, before saying there's no need to extend facemask rules, or work from home, and telling the public not to cancel their Christmas parties.

The most concerning thing is that in a very short amount of time, young people will never remember a time when culture, music and art wasn't inauthentic, conformist and compromised.

This is some insidious crap.

It is perfectly possible to support the general concept of vaccination while opposing mandatory government vaccination.

anti-vaxxer noun

Save Word

an-ti-vax-xer | \ an-tē-'vak-sər, ˌan-ˌtī \

plural anti-vaxxers

Definition of anti-vaxxer

: a person who opposes vaccination or laws that mandate vaccination

// As anti vaxxers launch a campaign against a bill that would eliminate their ability to opt out of required shots, supporters of the proposal are delivering more than 21,000 petition signatures to the office of state Sen.

Guess who were not allowed to visit theatres & cinemas, pubs or cafés, swimming pools, libraries & other sporting & entertainment facilities

From this website

Sounds very similar to 2021. Not allowed to make comparisons though holoca.ust.cz/en/h story/f n...

Thanks @GrahamNeary

> Jews were banned from entering certain streets, squares, parks, woods and other public places. From September 1939 on, they were not allowed to stay outside their houses after eight o'clock in the evening. From November 1940 on, Jews were not allowed to leave their municipalities, even temporarily, without special permission. Jews were not allowed to visit theatres and cinemas, pubs or cafés, swimming pools, libraries and other sporting and entertainment facilities. When travelling by city public transport, Jews were confined to standing in the last carriage. In trains, they were not allowed to use the dining or sleeping cars, and they were allowed to travel only in the lowest class - and once again, only in the last carriage. They were banned from entering waiting rooms and other railway facilities. Shopping times for Jews were limited to two hours twice a day, later two hours a day. Jews had their radio sets taken away, were limited in their choice of food, and were not allowed to keep pets. Many more such bans and orders could be listed, all of them designed to humiliate Jews and set up an invisible wall between them and the rest of the population.

Sky News runs this top headline and nowhere even in the body of the article is it mentioned that Omicron has killed precisely zero people and many experts say it is "very mild" and not causing serious illnesses.

Lying by omission, and a pretty big omission at that.

The UK government is actually still considering vaccine passports after their own leaked report said they could actually increase the spread of COVID.

Similar studies in Wales, N. Ireland and Spain have also found them to be useless.

Just implement them anyway!

If true, this means that elitists who landed in private jets to attend an event at which they exploited fears over climate change to push for more control over our lives were actually responsible for circulating a variant that will help them push for more control over our lives

Rumours abounding of an imminent Quad meeting to discuss imposing Plan B as early as tomorrow morning, meaning Working From Home and covid passports for large venues. One source tells me it's "85% likely". Let's see. One helluva dead cat.

There is disquiet about how quickly this decision process is moving in Whitehall. I'm told the Covid Taskforce is yet to even submit papers to the PM and Health Secon Plan B, which were due later in the week. A source tells me "Boris decided to do it last night"

That said, epidemiologists are now beginning to advocate Plan B now. Prof Neil Ferguson says Omicron likely to overtake Delta by Xmas and peak in January, and "Plan B+ would slow it down to allow more boosters"

But Tory MPs adamantly aren't. I also understand only 3 ministers spoke in favour of Plan B now during Cabinet yesterday. One senior Tory MP just now: "I'm not having all our lives fucked up by these fucking halfwits again just to dig themselves out of their own fucking mess".

Boris clamps more chains on us and one of the first questions asked by journalists is 'why not a mandatory vaccine passport?'

I hope a journalist asks the Prime Minister what evidence there is that vaccine passports will reduce the no. of people infected with Covid and cites the recent 70-page Scottish Govt report saying they'd made zero difference north of the border? Won't hold my breath.

I absolutely agree with the importance of giving people the choice whether to have the booster ASAP (I've had mine).

Vaccine passports however are ineffective, counterproductive and unethical.

Mandatory vaccination should be categorically ruled out. No conversation is needed.

Taken off another feed but a must read. This is his strategy !

Telegraph that he first introduced the public to the "dead cat" ploy pioneered by his former campaign manager, the Australian political strategist Sir Lynton Crosby.

"Let us suppose you are losing an argument," he wrote in March 2013. "The facts are overwhelmingly against you, and the more people focus on the reality the worse it is for you and your case. Your best bet in these circumstances is to perform a manoeuvre that a great campaigner describes as 'throwing a dead cat on the table, mate'."

The beauty, he explained, was that people would still be "outraged, alarmed, disgusted" but talking about

The UK government is actually still considering vaccine passports after their own leaked report said they could actually increase the spread of COVID.

Similar studies in Wales, N. Ireland and Spain have also found them to be useless.

Just implement them anyway!

Solution is lockdown until we can deliver the next vaccine. Then lockdown when the next variant arrives. Then vaccines, then lockdown again when the next variant arrives.

The primary blame for perpetrating the Jussie Smollett hoax obviously rests with Smollett , but it's still worth asking (a) what cultural factors incentivize this behavior and (b) why so many leading Dems instantly and unquestioningly seized on this before anything was known:

22,388 new cases and 22 new deaths in South Africa yesterday.

Omicron isn't killing people, zero people in the world have died from it.

Yet our government, which promised to judge policy on hospitalisations and deaths, is hyping case numbers to scare us into lockdown.

Absurd.

If the COVID cases don't spike, they'll say it's because of the restrictions they imposed.

If they do spike, they'll say it's because there weren't enough restrictions and more need to be imposed.

They really can't lose, can they?

It's possible that Dr Jones, Ms Kelly and Mr Kemp had been incorrectly referring to figures for Covid patients receiving intensive or other specialist care, since there is some evidence that most of these are unvaccinated.

Overall, vaccination is highly protective against severe Covid, reducing people's chance of being admitted to hospital with the disease by more than 90%.

However, a very large share of the UK's population has now been vaccinated, especially those most at risk, meaning that the small fraction of vaccinated people who still become seriously ill are numerous enough to make up a majority of hospital admissions.

The vaccine works. So why are we behaving as if it doesn't?

We were one of the first countries to roll out the vaccine. Yet a year on, we're hardly seeing any societal benefit from it

AOC just deleted this tweet from Jan 2019 pushing the Jussie Smollett hate hoax and bashing a media outlet for referring to it as a "possible" attack.

Alexandria Ocasio-Cortez
@AOC

There is no such thing as “racially charged.”

This attack was not “possibly” homophobic. It was a racist and homophobic attack.

If you don’t like what is happening to our country, then work to change it. It is no one’s job to water down or sugar-coat the rise of hate crimes.

When I said a few days ago that Javid's projection of a million cases a day was insane, some people on here insisted that he must have meant a million cases in total by the end of the month. No. This is what he was looking at.

Christopher Snowdon @cjsnowdon · 42s

spectator.co.uk/article/the-th

In a statement to the House of Commons, Sajid Javid resorted to 'Disco Stu' mathematics to justify his extraordinary claim that the UK was heading towards one million cases of Covid a day by the end of this month. He said that if there were 10,000 cases of Omicron in the country (only 568 have been confirmed) and if the numbers double every two or three days, a million cases per day would be the result. This would be far beyond anything seen in the most Covid-ravaged parts of the world since the pandemic began. Moreover, rates are no longer doubling every two or three days in the Gauteng province of South Africa where Omicorn was first discovered.

In 2020, Covid policy was often based on reasonable worst case scenarios. It now seems to be based on insane nightmare scenarios.

NOTE Andrew Neil in his Daily Mail column, as well as @theTimes (both below) have used the word REFUSENIKS to call for PUNISHING the VACCINE FREE.

STRANGE twist of irony.

REFUSENIKS were the good guys persecuted by the Soviets for not following orders. They were also Jews.

refusenik | rɪˈfjuːznɪk |

1 a person in the former Soviet Union who was refused permission to emigrate, in particular, a Jewish person forbidden to emigrate to Israel.

2 a person who refuses to follow orders or obey the law, especially as a protest.

The Times view on responding to the Omicron variant: Plan C

The world is better able to deal with the latest Covid mutation than it was Delta. But if new measures are needed, they should be targeted at the unvaccinated

Out of 67,000,000 people in the UK, there are 7,308 in hospital with Covid & 892 in ICU. I still cannot comprehend why we are a nation on its knees mentally and emotionally for this. Why did the govt cut beds & ICU capacity when the NHS couldn't cope EVERY SINGLE WINTER??

22,388 new cases and 22 new deaths in South Africa yesterday.

Omicron isn't killing people, zero people in the world have died from it.

Yet our government, which promised to judge policy on hospitalisations and deaths, is hyping case numbers to scare us into lockdown.

Absurd.

Why is it that the media never allows the massive damage caused by "just in case" or "worst case scenario" COVID measures to be a central part of the conversation?

Missed cancers, mental health trauma, economic turmoil, fractured families?

Because the media loves lockdown.

My favourite lockdown argument is that we need lockdowns to prevent more lockdowns. It's been two years.

From the PM who is a compulsive liar and can't comb his hair properly, a declaration of Omicron disaster.

He tells us all will be well if we get boosted with a shot designed before this variant even emerged.

I don't believe a word of it.

So once again the NHS will be put on hold & become the National Covid Service with the sole aim of delivering booster jabs against one disease.

Long-awaited routine operations delayed and primary care all but suspended for a month.

They've learned nothing in 21 months. Nothing.

Back to the Delta wave & an update on what's happened in W. Europe since Oct. when many said that if we had kept restrictions like them, we would have had much better outcomes - not appreciating that our strategy was to prevent Winter peaks & reduce overall deaths/admissions.

Part 1 of that strategy s working & based on current trends it's likely UK will have one of the lower total deaths/admiss ons too
So hope those who criticised July 19th dec sion wil now see that the restrictions were postponing deaths/admiss ons, not preventing them

Dr Raghib Ali MD(Epi) MPH MSc(Epi) MA DLSHTM FRCP @drraghiba l · 5h
And postponing them to Winter when health systems are busier with greater knock-on effects for non-Covid pat ents as wel
And there were lots of health benefits menta , physical & from reduced unemployment from lifting restrict ons ear ier which are too often forgotten

So, no it's not that we didn't care about Covid deaths/ admissions but based on reasonable predictions of what was l kely to happen (and s now happening) it was likely that lifting restrict ons on July 19th would lead to the least overa health harm over who e Delta wave

All the Omicron scaremongers are in safe jobs and can work from home. They don't care if they help to obliterate industries like hospitality and travel with disproportionate restrictions. Because they need to feel 'safe'. Irrational fear is more infectious and powerful than CV.

I will be voting against the introduction of vaccine passports on Tuesday. Their effectiveness is unconvincing and the impact on our hospitality industry and major events businesses, who have already had to sacrifice so much, would be unjustified. #peoplebeforepolitics

"Peter Streicher, a research associate at the University of Johannesburg: "Omicron is extremely mild. The rest of the world has nothing to fear."

Some experts claim there has not been enough time for the death rate to catch up with [illegible] case fatality rate will rise as infections start to translate into hospitalisations and deaths.

But Peter Streicher, research associate at University of Johannesburg, points out that the infection to death lag in South Africa is just 10 days because most cases are only picked up once they arrive at hospital when many are already severe. It means omicron should have been visible in the death data by now.

The case fatality rate was consistently at three per cent until late November, mostly delta deaths," he said. "If the case fatality rate remained at three per cent, we would have seen 600 deaths per day by now. We are seeing around 30 deaths per day currently, of which a few are probably still delta deaths.

he Government's Plan B prioritises measures which can help control transmission o e virus while seeking to minimise economic and social impacts. This includes:

a. Communicating clearly and urgently to the public that the level of risk has increased, and with it the need to behave more cautiously.
b. Introducing mandatory vaccine-only COVID-status certification in certain settir
c. Legally mandating face coverings in certain settings.

he Government would also consider asking people once again to work from home if ey can, for a limited period. The Government recognises this causes more disruptio nd has greater immediate costs to the economy and some businesses than the othe an B interventions, so a final decision would be made based on the data at the time

I'm afraid I think they make next to no difference because there is no seal, there is no effective filter, "droplets" are fluids not bound to the virus particles and subject to deformation under pressure, the handling of them in the community is not exactly "glove to glove" etc

Charles Forsyth @charles_forsyth · 38m
air containing virus particles is also a fluid (and the masks are leaky), [more stuff], and although I once thought that if they "worked" they could just increase viral load by accumulating particles or convert an airborne to a topical, seem to make little difference either way

The fear that has been pumped into so many people is absolutely heartbreaking. Over almost 2 years, our media and government have terrified people into submission or behavioural habits that will be extremely difficult to shake off. It's beyond disturbing.

Quick situation update from Gauteng, showing all key metrics including excess deaths.

Cases and test positivity peaking, admissions slowing.

Deaths still climbing at same pace as past waves, but based on slowdown in cases we can be sure deaths will not get close to Delta peak.

Omicron wave seems to be peaking at the same level as the delta wave. Could this mean there is a limiting factor such as testing capacity?

Leo DP @Leodp1973 · 26m
Probably not. Test positivity is also peaking at the same level (30-40%?), so no more "hidden" cases in Omicron than in Delta Remember Sajid Javid predicting a million cases a day recently? Public Health England 2.0 have quietly withdrawn the model this was based on, citing "behaviour change".

Methodology for estimating daily infections: 16 December 2021

Summary

On the 13 December 2021, UKHSA estimated that around 24% of all COVID-19 positive cases with specimen dates on the 11 December, which could be assessed accurately for the presence or absence of multiple genes, did not have a detectable S-Gene and so were highly likely to be the Omicron VOC-21NOV-01 (B.1.1.529) variant. The data on testing came from UKHSA's Second Generation Surveillance System (SGSS).
We assumed that:

- this proportion was an unbiased estimate of the proportion of Omicron cases
- the lag between infections and specimen dates was 4 days
- there were 78,000 Delta infections on the 7 December, based on modelled daily incidence for 21 November 2021 (ONS Infection Survey).

These inputs are sufficient to estimate that on the 7 December there were approximately 25,000 daily Omicron infections. By assuming a constant doubling time of 1.9 days, Figure 1 plots daily Omicron infections using this starting point. Assuming this constant doubling time, UKHSA estimates that, during the day of the 13 December, just over 200,000 people were infected with the Omicron variant. Using different assumptions for the starting number of infections only has small implications for the trajectory of the chart below. The path of modelled future infections is highly sensitive to the estimated doubling time over the modelled period. Using the 95% credible intervals of the doubling time estimates derived by UKHSA (1.5 to 2.4) suggests the value is between 140,000 and 390,000.
This analysis assumes the doubling time remains constant between 7 to 13 December. Because this assumption will have become less valid since then due to behaviour change, this method of nowcasting the number of new infections is no longer valid.

Omicron infections assuming a doubling time of 1.9 days

Your brain isn't even fully developed until 25.

Getting more "conservative as you get older" is more about realising all the inane utopian shit you believed as a teenager is bunk.

Unfortunately, most of you lot are perma-frozen in cognitive adolescence so never actually do.

I like how people say "you'll become more conservative as you get older" basically admitting it's a degenerative condition

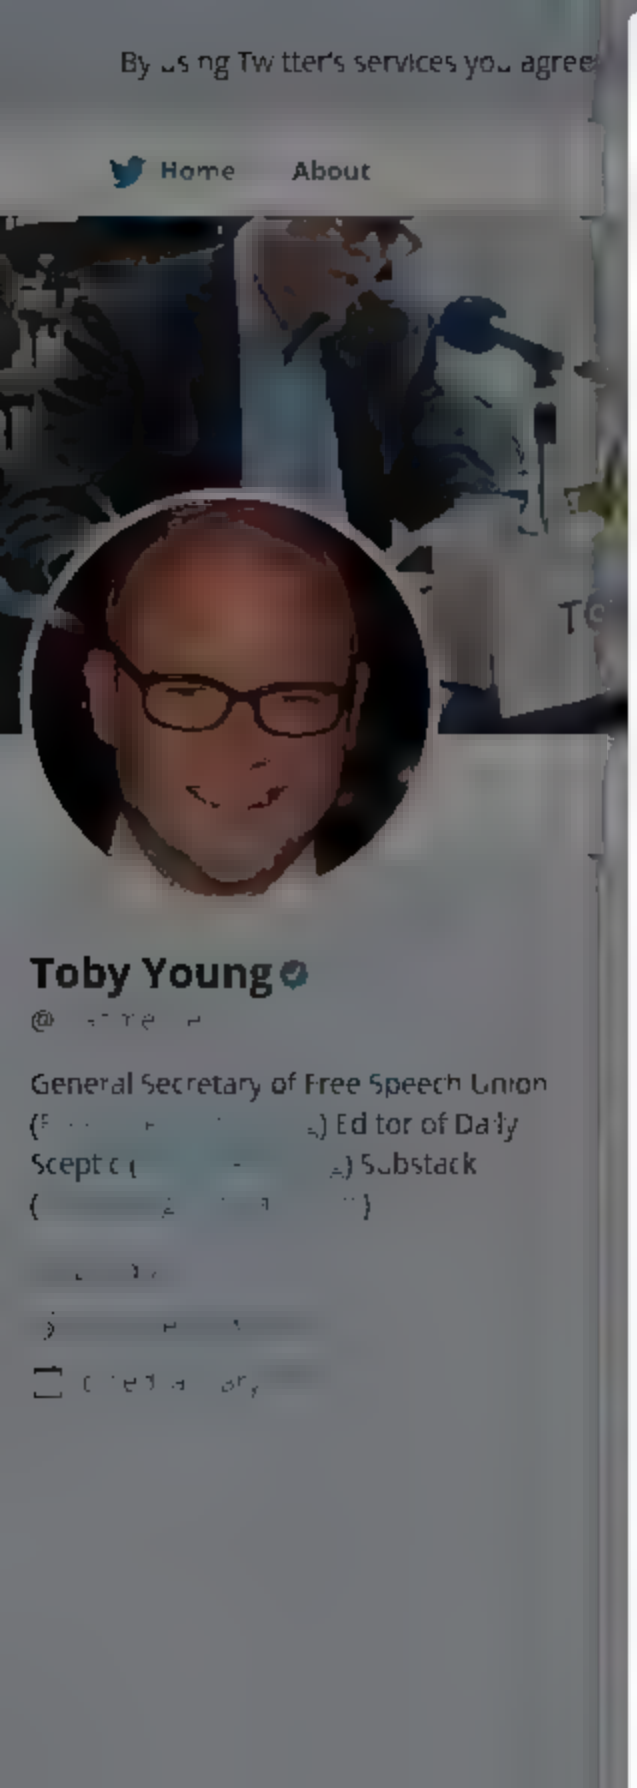
‘No evidence’ that Omicron is less severe than Delta, say Imperial researchers

UK study warns of elevated reinfection risk but notes ‘very limited’ data on hospitalisations

There is at present “no evidence” that the Omicron coronavirus variant is any less severe than the Delta strain, according to early findings from researchers at Imperial College London, which also highlighted the elevated risk of reinfection posed by Omicron and the need for booster shots to combat it.



The research, based on UK infection data, casts doubt on the hopes of some experts that a change in the virulence of the new variant would ease the pressure on health systems despite Omicron’s high levels of infectiousness.

“The study finds no evidence of Omicron having lower severity than Delta, judged by either the proportion of people testing positive who report symptoms, or by the proportion of cases seeking hospital care after infection,” said the research team, led by Professor Neil Ferguson, an infectious disease modeller and government science adviser.

However, they cautioned that hospitalisation data “remains very limited at this time”. The study said data suggested “at most, limited changes in severity compared with Delta”.

Imperial College study finds Omicron could be just as severe as Delta

Oliver Barnes and John Burn-Murdoch in London

The Omicron coronavirus variant could be just as severe as the Delta strain, according to early findings from researchers at Imperial College London, in a study which also highlighted the elevated risk of reinfection posed by the new variant and the need for booster shots to combat it.

"The study finds no evidence of Omicron having lower severity than Delta, judged by either the proportion of people testing positive who report symptoms, or by the proportion of cases seeking hospital care after infection," said the research team, led by Professor Neil Ferguson, an infectious disease modeller and government science adviser.

In settings where face coverings are required in England, there are some circumstances where people may not be able to wear a face covering.

Please be mindful and respectful of such circumstances. Some people are less able to wear face coverings, and the reasons for this may not be visible to others.

This includes (but is not limited to):

- children under the age of 11 (The UK Health Security Agency does not recommend face coverings for children under the age of 3 for health and safety reasons)
- people who cannot put on, wear or remove a face covering because of a physical or mental illness or impairment, or disability
- people for whom putting on, wearing or removing a face covering will cause severe distress
- people speaking to or providing assistance to someone who relies on lip reading, clear sound or facial expressions to communicate
- to avoid the risk of harm or injury to yourself or others
- police officers and other emergency workers, given that this may interfere with their ability to serve the public

Simple question.

They say the vaccine, particularly the booster, is effective against Omicron at preventing serious illness and hospitalisation.

Fine.

So why are UK hospitals going to be overwhelmed by it when they haven't been in South Africa?

The NHS is teetering on the edge of collapse every winter. If we lockdown this winter, we accept that it becomes the go-to tool for public health officials every winter. It isn't the British people that need to change, it is the NHS.

No one is attacking the people who work in it, you melt.

We're saying that the NHS is a failed institution, propped up by a weird religiosity that forbids any genuine criticism or reform of it.

And it's not underfunded, its budget gets bigger every frigging year.

At least partially because a) that takes a long time b) even the physical capacity is dependent on staffing levels of specialists which takes longer and c) both are made longer by being put on hold by the crisis of the moment.

Then add in shutting off external recruitment

Alexander Clarkson @APHClarkson · 6h
The problem is the current crisis response seems less and less viable and will fall apart, possibly soon. So we have no choice but to start looking at the other end of the equation even if shifts take time. Handling transition to that is challenge for policymakers and politicians

This sort of stuff is data science 101 though. That's my biggest issue with the modelling, if you presented this stuff in industry without this sort of validation of past results, you'd be laughed out of town. Modelling seems very far beyond state of art data science

8 · 98 · 343

Graham Medley @GrahamMedley · 8h
The point being missed is these scenarios are not predictions. We can't predict what people are going to do over Christmas (many people themselves are "undecided"). They are made to support a decision to illustrate the possibilities and uncertainty

27 · 42 · 74

Fraser Nelson @FraserNelson · 8h
Hi Graham. I guess the question is why LSHTM did not (like JP Morgan) include a scenario of lower virulence - given that this is a very-plausible option that changes outlook massively. See below

e LSHTM assumes that the virulence of the Omicron variant is the same as the e Delta variant. But, evidence from South Africa suggests that Omicron infecti lta infections. Milder infections would result in fewer hospital admissions and al Table 3 presents our assessment of the impact of reduced virulence for the L ic scenario in terms of hospital bed occupancy by COVID-19 patients at the er expressed as a percentage of the all-time peak seen in January 2021). Under th t pessimistic scenario, bed occupancy by COVID-19 patients at the end of Jan dly higher than the peak seen in January 2021. If there were to be a 50% declin rate (from 1.75% for Delta infections to 0.875% for Omicron infections) then COVID-19 patients at the end of January 2022 would be 56.7% of the peak see
If, in addition, the duration of the stay in hospital declined from 8 days to 3 da by COVID-19 patients at the end of January 2022 would be 33.6% of the peak
This would be manageable without further restrictions

5 · 146 · 353

Graham Medley @GrahamMedley · 6h
What would be the point of that? Not a snarky question- genuine to know what you think decision makers would learn from that scenario

16 · 17 · 25

Fraser Nelson @FraserNelson · 5h
In the low-virulence scenario modelled by JP Morgan, no further restrictions would be needed so harm to economy and society might be averted.

Can I ask why you didn't think this less alarming (and quite plausible) scenario was worth including? Like yours, a genuine question.

23 · 151 · 783

Graham Medley @GrahamMedley · 5h
You know the answer. That's what the paper says. If somebody draws a line on a graph it doesn't add any further information. Decision-makers are generally on only interested in situations where decisions have to be made

17 · 43 · 74

Fraser Nelson @FraserNelson · 5h
I may be being thick but I'm afraid I don't know the answer! Why would you not - for completeness - add the scenario where Omicron is less virulent and more restrictions are not needed?

19 · 87 · 647

Graham Medley @GrahamMedley · 5h
I meant you know what happens. That scenario doesn't inform anything. Decision-makers don't have to decide if nothing happens

Might be helpful to make a distinction between scenario and prediction. Presumably there is a base case, a clear eyed summary of the available incomplete evidence. Then there are various scenarios which are not predictions (ie do not have a probability of being right or wrong).

Why would they model scenarios that wouldn't necessitate a change in government policy? Surely the job of modelling is to identify checkpoints at which a decision on a change to existing policy would be required?

1 · 11

Daniel @j_j_gatami · 4h
Who says it wouldn't necessitate a change in government policy though? Maybe the government would decide that the number of hospitalisations generated by a less virulent virus would still be worth more light touch measures or guidance. It's not up to modellers to rule that out

Contributing to the wave of hysteria sweeping London over Omicron is the fact that there is also a pretty bad cold/flu bug going around (yes they still exist) which tons of people are catching, and are just assuming is Omicron.

We've had 3 lockdowns, spent £370 billion that cannot now be spent on hospitals and schools, and damaged a generation of children. Why do Sage think a 4th lockdown and a few hundred billion more will achieve a better or different result?

So why would a firebreak in 8 days time in UK make any sense

Surely time for a lockdown?

COVID-19 related deaths at lowest level since October, data shows

Some 7n4 deaths in England and Wales that mentioned COVID-19 on the certificate were registered in the week ending 10 December, the Office for National Statistics has revealed – the lowest level since 5 October.

The number is also down 4% on the previous week.

Data also shows that [illegible] of all deaths registered in England and Wales in the same period were linked to COVID-19.

As a caveat to this data, hospitalisations and deaths lag several weeks behind cases so we may not yet be seeing the effects of Omicron infections just yet.

New study from Imperial finds significant reduction in risk of hospitalisation from Omicron, almost as if those doctors in South Africa weren't lying after all.
imperial.ac.uk/media/imperial ...

> Overall, we find evidence of a reduction in the risk of hospitalisation for Omicron relative to Delta infections, averaging over all cases in the study period. The extent of reduction is sensitive to the inclusion criteria used for cases and hospitalisation, being in the range 20-25% when using any attendance at hospital as the endpoint, and 40-45% when using hospitalisation lasting 1 day or longer or hospitalisations with the ECDS discharge field recorded as "admitted" as the endpoint (Table 1). These reductions must be balanced against the larger risk of infection with Omicron, due to the reduction in protection provided by both vaccination and natural infection. A previous infection reduces the risk of any hospitalisation by approximately 50% (Table 2) and the risk of a hospital stay of 1+ days by 61% (95%CI 55-65%) (before adjustments for under ascertainment of reinfections) dead were carried out covered in marmalade. A hat factory was hit and the dead were brought out bristling with sewing needles. One underground shelter took a direct hit and 600 people were killed instantly. Another was hit by a bomb that severed a water main, and more than 100 people died when their shelter flooded in minutes.

The less real struggle a society endures, the more depressed it seems to become, inventing artificial struggles that don't exist.

On and on the horror went: people dying in their homes or neighborhoods while doing the most mundane things. Not only did these experiences fail to produce mass hysteria, they didn't even trigger much individual psychosis. Before the war, projections for psychiatric breakdown in England ran as high as [illegible] people, but as the Blitz progressed, psychiatric hospitals around the country saw admissions go down. Emergency services in London reported an average of only two cases of "bomb neuroses" a week. Psychiatrists watched in puzzlement as long-standing patients saw their symptoms subside during the period of intense air raids. Voluntary admissions to psychiatric wards noticeably declined, and even epileptics reported having fewer seizures. "Chronic neurotics of peacetime now drive ambulances," one doctor remarked. Another ventured to suggest that some people actually did better during wartime.

The positive effects of war on mental health were first noticed by the great sociologist Emile Durkheim, who found that when European countries went to war, suicide rates dropped. Psychiatric wards in Paris were strangely empty during both world wars, and that remained true even as the German army rolled into the city in 1940. Researchers documented a similar phenomenon during civil wars in Spain, Algeria, Lebanon, and Northern Ireland. An Irish psychologist named H. A. Lyons found that suicide rates in Belfast dropped 70 percent during the riots of 1969 and 1970, and homicide and other violent crimes also went down. Depression rates for both men and women declined noticeably during that period, with men experiencing the most extreme drop in the most violent districts. County Derry, on the other hand—which suffered almost no violence at all—saw male depression rates rise rather than fall. Lyons hypothesized that men in the peaceful areas were depressed because they couldn't help their society by participating in the struggle.

Allison Pearson's article is excellent.

The fact that it has upset so many 'govern me harder, daddy' serial bedwetters is just an added bonus.

> Mic Wright @brokenbottleboy Dec 21
> In the face of fierce competition, Allison Pearson remains both the most technically atrocious and unhinged columnist in Britain

This Christmas, if the Archangel Whitty hasn't cancelled the festive season, cautioning against the reckless and unnecessary consumption of sausage rolls, there will be a Covid swear-box at Pearson Towers. Anyone who mentions the wretched virus must put 50p in a jar. All proceeds to the Salvation Army, whose magnificent mission is based on faith in Jesus Christ "who wants everyone to experience life in all its fullness". Shhh! Don't tell the old misery guts on Sage. Those scientists would crucify that Jesus chappie for "dither and delay" in imposing curbs on social gatherings as the omicron variant rages like a forest fire across the land causing devastation, destruction, plague and death. Or, alternatively, causing Brian in Blandford Forum to have a bit of a sore throat.

Astonishing fact. 70% of London's so-called "COVID hospitalizations"are diagnosed several days after admission for other ailments.
They are NOT COVID patients.
A positive test 8 days after admission means the hospital basically gave the patient COVID.

Welsh First Minister Mark Drakeford made an "untrue statement with the intent to deceive" by claiming Omicron is "probably" just as severe as delta, despite three studies concluding the opposite.

He used this lie to justify COVID restrictions.

Scandal. End the restrictions.

It's not enough for Boris to scrap plans for a "circuit breaker" (lockdown) after Christmas.

Remove all the other restrictions now.

We behave as if he's doing us a favour, he's not.

None of the crap he imposed last month will likely be lifted for months.

A study two years ago by YouGov showed that 37% of TV adverts featured black people (who make up 3% of the UK population). Yet ethnic South Asians (who make up around 5% of the population) barely feature. This seems a major discrepancy. What are the reasons for it?

Here's the latest, as of 8am this morning, for patients with covid in hospital in England. If we don't end up going quite a bit higher than that hump in the middle (which didn't swamp the NHS), no-one can claim the NHS is anywhere near swamped. Frankly, it doesn't seem v likely.

The restrictions in Wales, Northern Ireland and Scotland are completely absent of evidence-based justification. In Wales, they refused to even release such evidence.

The alarmists got it massively wrong about Omicron.

Reverse the restrictions and stop the damage now.

The restrictions in Wales, Northern Ireland and Scotland are completely absent of evidence-based justification. In Wales, they refused to even release such evidence.

The alarmists got it massively wrong about Omicron.

Reverse the restrictions and stop the damage now.

Clearly the vast, vast majority were admitted for other reasons and then tested positive for benign, mild COVID after.

But they want to frighten you so they don't mention that in the headline, because it wouldn't even be a headline.

Shameful.

EXCLUSIVE Are we on the brink of OVER-vaccinating in the fight against Covid? Experts warn dishing out fourth shots in spring may be unnecessary - and Omicron may be world's 'natural' vaccine that finally ends pandemic

There are fears the US and UK may be on the path to 'over-vaccination' as it considers offering a fourth Covid vaccination dose to the public, after data showed immunity from booster jabs starts to fade after just 10 weeks. Israel has already started rolling out fourth doses of Covid vaccines to vulnerable people, such as the elderly, and medical workers who look after them, over fears that their immunity may already be fading four months after their third jab. Currently, the US is holding a line on third doses, with health officials saying more data is needed on the protection improvement potentially offered by a fourth dose.

The authoritarian regime ruling Kazakhstan has implemented a nationwide Internet blackout in order to censor anti-government protesters.

Thank God we in the west aren't at the mercy of institutions that arbitrarily abuse their power to silence free speech and public debate.

Novak Djokovic was made an example of to intimidate other people.

A set up from the very start. Disgusting and foul malevolence, but that's what we expect from the post-democratic state of Australia.

Thus far, the Biden DOJ has charged ZERO people for inciting insurrection, sedition, treason -- even though liberal media outlets keep calling 1/6 an "Insurrection." They also want Trump & GOP leaders prosecuted.

Garland hears this political pressure and is promising to do more.

Cal Leyland @CalylandCa94 1h
Well we do know that antibodies last longer getting covid than the vaccination on 1st 2nd or booster when it's omicron, that's a fact, so it's actually better protection getting covid then vaccine as vaccine only lasts 10 weeks

Fascinating how open borders leftists are cheering on an (ostensibly) right-wing government in Australia making up border policy on the spot in order to discriminate against someone entering the country due to their personal beliefs.

The religion of the jab overrules all.

Discussing intolerant aspects of Islam or engaging in legitimate debate about mass migration doesn't make anyone complicit in mass shootings.

Just as all Muslims are not to blame for Islamic terror attacks.

The fact I have to point this out every time is fucking depressing.

3 Surbiton A place so dull I don't even have anything to say about it. The train station is interesting to look at for two minutes. But if you're really going on holiday to look at concrete art deco buildings you might as well go to Perivale and gaze at the old Hoover factory.

Mencius Moldbugman @mo db..gman 27m

4th place goes to Birkenhead which in the local Scouse patois is pronounced "Beeeeerkinhed". Like most areas of Merseyside it is primarily known for its deep mines of self pity and its sporting prowess in football squash and fencing.

1 1 17

Mencius Moldbugman @mo db..gman 24m

Like it's neighbour Warrington Birkenhead is also known for its quirky characters. Before @Babygravy9 the most famous gym fan in England was "Purple Aki" an enormous black man, so black he seemed purple, who would stalk the gyms of Birkenhead looking to molest bodybuilders.

2 14

Mencius Moldbugman @mo db..gman 21m

Purple Aki would hang outside Merseyside gyms and ask young men to do push ups for him and then go on to ask rig to squeeze their muscles. Legend has it that if you refused his fitness assessment he would slash his initials across your buttock cheeks.

2 2 15

Mencius Moldbugman @mo db..gman 20m

The Guardian sadly fails to mention the local colour of Birkenhead and instead extols the virtues of Woods de Vent lat on Station think I'd rather meet Purple Aki

2 1 10

Mencius Moldbugman @mo db..gman 15m

At fifth place, The Guardian throws a bone to Wales and includes fucking Wrexham of all places into their deluded list.

Wrexham is a place so shit it makes nearby Rhyl look like Cannes by comparison. The biggest joke of the place is that the main street is called "Hope Street"

Mencius Moldbugman @mo db..gman 11m

Once spent an evening in Wrexham waiting for a bus that never arrived. After a few hours observing the natives I then realised exactly why the nearby city of Chester allows it to be legal to shoot a Welsh person with a bow and arrow ins de the city walls after midnight.

Mencius Moldbugman @mo db..gman 9m

The Guardian article declares "The most purist form of tourism is to travel in search of nothing." If they sincerely mean this then they have found their dealin Wrexham. Unless your wife's insisting on visiting all of Britain's Argos stores, there's really no reason to go.

And finally, in what is obviously the final touch to their patronising, sarcastic article, The Guardian tries to establish Elephant and Castle as an up-and-coming holiday destination.

A photo tells a thousand words. So here are 4 photos of the now-demolished E&C shopping centre.

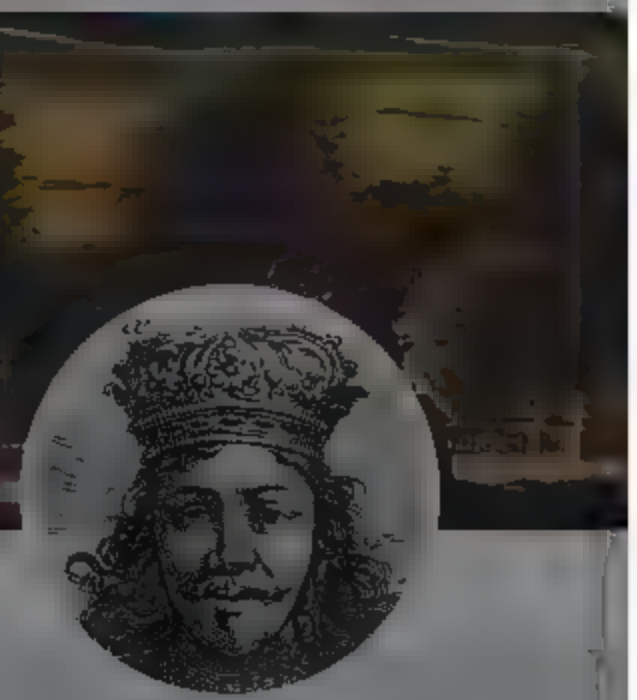
"Residents lament the recent demolition of the Elephant & Castle shopping centre – not for them a symbol of urban decay, but of home from home."



No they don't. I know people who lived in E&C. They feel the same way about that centre as Polish Jews felt about the Warsaw Ghetto.

Crazy idea, but maybe calling people who don't want to get the vaccine stupid, dangerous, selfish, conspiracy theorists won't convince them to get it.

Not about that though, is it?

97% of English religious art was destroyed and lost during the period between Thomas and Oliver Cromwell. We have lost a precious connection to our history. In what world is that a good thing?

The media tells us to be outraged about a garden party while it simultaneously demonizes millions of people over a personal medical choice.

I'm more outraged about that.

I'm more outraged about COVID passports & the devastation caused by lockdown.

The media class who lobbied for the inhumanity of lockdown and all the bedwetters who blindly submitted to it and enforced it on others are just as culpable as this government.

Save me the sanctimonious moral grandstanding.

Face mask rules were re-introduced in the UK based on doomsday Omicron modelling that has proven to be spectacularly wrong.

Yet the government is preparing to keep face mask rules in place.

Why?

Get rid, along with all the other odious Plan B nonsense.

Mask mandates are to end in England.

Those whose entire personality is predicated on harassing people in supermarkets for not wearing masks will now have to find a different excuse to inflict their insufferable obnoxiousness on others.

By the next Election no-one will care or even remember who drank wine with whom in May 2020. But they will remember that Labour would have kept us all locked up for half a year, unnecessarily, & repeatedly urged that that must happen, & that Boris' government didn't do that.

It's very good news the Government intends to scrap covid Plan B in its entirety. It was always unnecessary.

I hope that bodies such as museums & theatres will also now stop requiring social distancing, timed entry, vaccine passports, etc.

We need to get back to normal.

France have had mask mandates indoor and outdoor since July last year. They also have vaccine passports and excluded unvaccinated people

450000 cases shows what an amazingly effective measure they are

VERDICT

Misleading. The letters were not "leaked" but were released as part of a Freedom of Information request. There is no evidence the "Great Reset" is part of an ominous plan by the WEF to control people.

The highest value in liberal culture is censorship.

They prattle on endlessly about protecting the sanctity of democracy when their whole plan is to control and suppress the free flow of information so they have a monopoly on discourse -- like they did before the 2020 election.

Researchers say scrutiny of podcasts is overdue

Misinformation researchers say it was only a matter of time until the spotlight turned to podcasts.

"Wherever you have users generating content, you're going to have all of the same content moderation issues and controversies that you have in any other space," said Evelyn Douek, a research fellow at Columbia University's Knight First Amendment Institute.

So why haven't podcasts gotten the same kind of attention as social networks?

Peter Doocy is doing his job as a journalist: holding powerful political officials accountable asking the tough questions. For that, he is demeaned and verbally assaulted by the most powerful politician in the country, in public, possibly inciting violence by his followers.

I love how in these situations, the mask freaks almost always insist on removing their masks to properly unleash their meltdown.

Seemingly the only situation in which they think it's acceptable not to wear one is when having a massive hissy fit.

More mask madness, this time in an elevator. The mask police are really nuts

Love Neil Young's music but what a fking plank. In 2006 he did the 'Freedom of Speech' Tour, now he's opposed to freedom of speech. 😕

Neil Young hasn't listened to a single hour of Rogan's podcast, and neither have all the NPCs on here obediently expressing their support.

Anyone with half a brain who actually listens to Rogan's show knows the media's portrayal of what is discussed is malevolently wrong.

If we catch cancer at an early stage, it's roughly a 90% survival rate. For later stages, that drops to around 10%.

It won't spread overnight, but in weeks and months it will.

We need to refocus public health messaging on finding the tens of thousands of 'missing' patients.

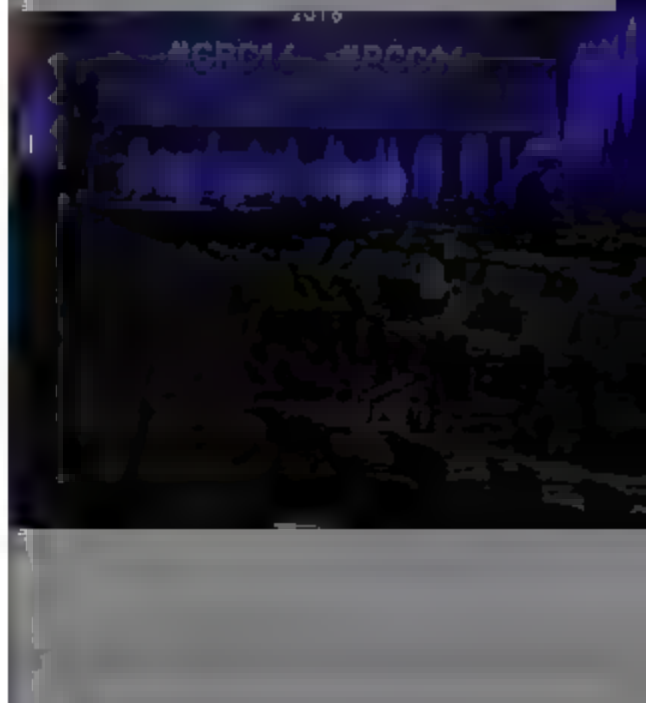
Trudeau has weaponized police forces against the peaceful trucker convoy.

Trudeau himself has made an excuse to hide from the media for five days -- he's triple-vaxxed and had a negative Covid test, but he's hiding.



He'll let his cops block democracy. That's how Castro does it.

The coordinated targeting of Rogan has little to do with vaccines and everything to do with the regime's panic at the fact that someone with such a huge platform isn't under their control.

Oh no, how awful.

The truth about Joe Rogan's controversial guests: 'Father of mRNA' Dr Malone pointed out that hospitals get COVID bonuses and said Biden government is 'out of control' - while Dr McCullough said US is hypnotized and 'pandemic is plandemic'

Joe Rogan in December hosted two controversial doctors on his podcast to discuss COVID-19. Their views shared in two three-hour episodes of his show have sparked widespread anger and created pressure on Spotify to drop Rogan. Neil Young and Joni Mitchell have withdrawn their music from Spotify in protest and Prince Harry and Meghan Markle have expressed their concern. Rogan is independent, insisting he is simply debating an issue.

Shouldn't apologies count for something? Given that we're all imperfect, we should want a society where contrition meets forgiveness? Yet we're constantly pushing towards a graceless society that treats apologies purely as confessions and thus grounds for further punishment.

The Canadian government is still mulling over whether to the military against Freedom Convoy protesters, although Prime Minister Justin Trudeau said the decision wouldn't be taken "lightly."

Also note the BBC's insistence on maintaining COVID security theatre like mask rules (legally scrapped) and social distancing (which hasn't been a thing in England for over 7 months).

It's over, deal with it.

It's only taken the BBC 2 years but finally, a perspective from a healthy young woman asking for equal treatment and respect rather than pity or persecution for her choice not to have a covid vaccine. She deserves nothing less. #bbcqt

Freedom Convoy will probably now have the $9 million it raised sent to far-left "charity" front groups. Why is anyone still using GoFundMe? They just steal your money and shut down your campaign. Don't use them!

Hi @Steve_Hilton tried to get #Santiago cancelled for saying the N word.

It turns out that in his book Don Winslow has used the n-word a lot... and I mean a lot.

So here is a VVERY long thread of Don Winslow using the N-word in his books.

Thread coming soon.

The mother was fawned and grabbed the girl and held her tight against her chest.

It was the first gang violence Mike ever saw. Two months later, he saw a shooting himself. Although Malone had to ride a desk until it was cleared and had to do a lot of paperwork, he was glad he had had PTSD or something, which it turned out he didn't.

Malone was a [redacted] cop, and now being Bob's self is the hardest part, but he had nightmares about running the [redacted] for the little girl.

Mike, he even has nightmares about being Bob's dad.

The clip was on YouTube and a local news station had picked it up. Malone's father-in-law, Bob's dad, was furious.

"I wouldn't be caught dead in this automobile," Hanson says. "It's going to be a conversation piece."

"It's Christmas!" says Mike's mother.

Malone joins his chin toward the bull-bar. "What's that for?"

Tai Tuckey has been sitting behind the smoker and holds his phone up to Malone's face.

"Take pictures, you two," Pat Tuckey says. "Take over my car. And it better be here when I get back, Malone."

"Where are you going?" asks Mike.

Tuckey answers: "Chinese."

"Chinese?" asks Mike.

"The fish, not the Jews?" Sanchez says. "Can we do this like gentlemen, say no to [redacted] and [redacted]?"

"I don't want to fight," he says. "It's Christmas Eve."

"Pussy," Sanchez says.

"The kids are here?" Malone says.

Turning up some double. Do you still have your [redacted] from when you were a kid?

"Yeah," Malone says.

"Then you're not a [redacted] unless you have one of those," Sanchez says.

"Make a statement."

"We got Black Tank going on here," Malone says. "Let's not [redacted] around."

"Yeah," says Mike.

"You just want me to bend over a few [redacted] and [redacted] them in the ass?" Sanchez asks.

"Pussy, sweet."

"The kids are here?" Malone says.

"Can we do this like gentlemen, say no to [redacted] and [redacted]?"

"I don't want to fight," he says. "It's Christmas Eve."

"The Second video clip."

"Yeah," Malone says. "It makes sense. You're [redacted] and [redacted] and you're out this cage to come fetch it."

"That's what I'm [redacted] for."

"Pussy, sweet."

Keir Starmer has spent two years supporting policies that involved condemning thousands of people to death in the hope that it might stop a virus spreading.

The only time he wasn't supporting them was when he was lamenting their withdrawal.

He's evil.

If the cops are smart, they wait to see which cans actually get used to fill the trucks and confiscate from/fine those people. Let them reveal themselves. It's easy to spot any decoys carrying empties, especially when you can see the fluid level through the can on a sunny day

The whole point of protesting is to make ppl uncomfortable.

Activists take that discomfort w/ the status quo & advocate for concrete policy changes. Popular support often starts small & grows.

To folks who complain protest demands make others uncomfortable... that's the point.

Chrystia Freeland, second in command to PM Trudeau, just said in a press conference that they can now freeze Canadians' bank accounts if the government suspects you have donated $25.00 or more to the trucking convoy.

Democracy has died today in Canada.

Why did you create a commercial that featured an underage girl in a short dress with the words "Hottest back to school fares" written on it?

Did Michael O'Leary have anything to do with that decision?

Today's verdict in Minneapolis is a small, yet important victory in the larger fight against racism and social injustice. Our hope is that we can carry this momentum forward as a nation because there is so much more we must do. We stand with our Black employees, customers, and partners in full support for racial equity and continue to urge Congress to move quickly to pass the George Floyd Justice in Policing Act.
